VISION EXPRESS

Becker's latest portable multimedia device ticks all the boxes when it comes to delivering maximum entertainment on the move. The Vision Pro can play DVDs, CDs and MP3s, receive analogue and digital TV broadcasts as well as featuring a picture viewer. The seven-inch TFT 16:9 ratio touch-screen display is the first of its kind in mobile DVD entertainment, along with high performance integrated speakers. With the optional digital tuner you can enjoy TV shows and FM-radio broadcasts, while connecting it up to your home cinema or hi-fi allows you to use it as a remote control and a monitor. With its high resolution screen and numerous features, it's perfect for entertainment on the go – the Vision Pro costs £379 and is available from over 250 retailers across the UK.

ECONOMY BOOST

If you're looking to improve your car's fuel economy then the EcoBox from NCS could be just what you need. According to NCS, the EcoBox can reduce your fuel consumption and CO2 emissions by between ten and 20 per cent, with these figures achieved at a constant 75mph over a 73-mile trip. In tests using a Cayenne Turbo, NCS claims to have seen a reduction in fuel consumption of between 12 and 16 per cent, equivalent to between 1.8 and 3.2-litres of fuel. The EcoBox reacts to fuel quality, utilising hydrocarbon molecular modification and NCS says that an electromagnetic signal splits the hydrogen atoms from the hydrocarbon molecules in a proportion that is measured by your car. Essentially, NCS claims that the EcoBox alters the fuel quality, with your engine adapting to this and returning better fuel economy. We've not tried the EcoBox ourselves, and while the claims that NCS makes sound impressive, it should be noted that it works best on journeys over 12.5 miles and at constant speeds. The EcoBox costs Euro 247.11 plus VAT and you can find out more at www.nclubsport.com.

WIPE CLEAN

A double-whammy from ArmorAll this month, starting with the news that its Clean & Shine Wipes have been named the Auto Express Product of the Year, and the UK's best car care product for 2007. Each self-sealing pack contains five wipes and they can be used to give the whole car a once-over or just to clean up particularly dirty bits with no rinsing or drying needed. Each wipe is designed to cut through dirt and is packed with natural waxes and silicones to leave a high gloss shine. The wipes cost just £2.99 for a pack of five. Also from ArmorAll this month is the company's new Insect Remover spray, formulated to remove bugs, birdlime and insect residue from your paintwork, glass and plastic trim. A 500ml bottle will set you back £4.99 and is available from branches of Halfords and other car accessory shops, as are the wipes. Visit www.armorall.co.uk to see the whole range of ArmorAll products.

We've got ten packs of wipes to give away so to be in with a chance of winning a pack send us a postcard marked 'ArmorAll' to the usual address or email us at gtpurelyporsche@unity-media.com with ArmorAll as the subject – the closing date for entries is 11 October. Good luck!

ASSAULT AND BATTERY

Megapulse has brought out the latest version of its battery-saving technology, the FAB-MK4. You hook it up to your battery and it removes sulphation from the battery plates, restoring it to nearly new condition, meaning you get more life from your battery. It is even able to rescue a battery that has suffered 100 per cent sulphation and would otherwise have to be thrown away. It consumes less power than your car clock and is available for 12, 24, 36 and 48 volt batteries. At £63 plus £6 p&p it's cheaper than buying a new battery and will make your current one last longer – you can buy online at www.megapulse.uk.net.

HAPPY MAPPING

The AA has brought out its new range of 2008 atlases, with a total of eight to choose from depending on your motoring needs. Whichever one you choose, you'll find over 100 new fixed camera sites added, highlighted SPECS speed cameras, an index of motorway services and all but one of them comes with a free tax disc holder. Choose from the A4 Road Atlas Britain, the latest version of Britain's best selling road atlas, the A3 Big Road Atlas with its three miles to one-inch scale and Channel Hopping guide, the A4 Easy Read atlas with a giant 2.3 miles to one-inch scale which is also available in A3 format and a 2.5 miles to one-inch scale. There's also the A4 Motorist's Atlas and the A5 Driver's Atlas, ideal for the glovebox, and if you're feeling flush there's the hardback or leather bound A4 Great Britain Road Atlas. You can find out more at www.theaa.com/bookshop and the atlases are available from all good bookstores and car accessory shops now.

We've got four Great Britain Road Atlases to give away – all you have to do to stand a chance of winning is to send us a postcard with your name and address to the usual magazine address and write AA Atlas on it or drop us an email at gtpurelyporsche@unity-media.com with AA Atlas as the subject. The closing date for entries is 11 October.
